ROUGH ON SOLDIERS.

Strip Opening Plan Deprives Them of Their Rights.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. [Special to Kansas City Journal.] The plan of the interior department of opening to settlement the Coronado Strip has no favor in the eyes of soldiers. This fact may be inferred from the statements made in these dispatches some time ago covering the same matter.

The commissioner of the land office stated today that the ruling of the department made it possible for one agent for the old soldiers to file any number of applications at the land office for the strip. The certificate was eligible to take land on the strip. One man could get the power of attorney for any number of old soldiers and make the filing of this kind and get his cases attended to when he reached the north for the purpose of getting certificates. But when it came to the matter of filing on land this same agent would be able to file only for one old soldier at a time. When he had made the filing he would be compelled to go to the foot of the line and take his turn. He explained the matter clearly in this way, and also observed that on the day of the opening the land office would be open only from noon to 1 o'clock.

After the commissioner had made himself clear on this point he observed: "This is only another way of beating the old soldier. We simply mean to arrange it so that the old soldier with his declaratory statement has no better chance to get land than any one else."

Oregon at the World's Fair.

The people of the state of Oregon are justly disposed to let the world know all about their climate and crops. By an ingenious arrangement visitors can see a glimpse of the climate and crop conditions for each week as it is telegraphed from the state by the United States Agricultural Department and posted on an immense board. In three years reports the exact temperature, amount of rain, etc., for each hour of every day of the year is given. The climate of the Willamette Valley must be the most even and moderate in the world judging by these reports. It is a literal fact that summer glides into fall, fall into winter and winter into spring, by such unperceptible changes that all seasons seem nearly alike except for the showery days of winter, and these are varied by many fine, sunny, lazy Indian summer ones.

One of the most important features presented to visitors is the magnificent educational exhibit, now fully open and complete, in the department of liberal arts. Nearly all of the states and territories are creditably represented. Particularly are the most distant states well represented, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and of these no exhibit is more attractive than that presented by the state of Oregon. Its specific character is numerous and many of them unique, and at once hold the attention of the passer by. In the department of ornithology there is a magnificent display of all the game birds of Oregon elegantly mounted. There are free-hand and mechanical drawings and photographs of public school work through the several grades. Of the higher institutions of learning the State University, the State Agricultural College and the Willamette University lend in their exhibits. The entire exhibit is a tribute to the enterprising and ability of the teachers and schools of the West-foot States—Chicago Inter Ocean.

One of the most attractive exhibits to the public in the mines and mining building is the model or miniature by hydraulic power in the Oregon section, which as a drawing card to the general public is only surpassed by the silver statue of "Justice." The planer mine consists of a bed of gravel about fifteen feet long and six feet wide, with sluiceway through the middle. A small hydraulic ram throws a vigorous stream of water against the gravel bank, carrying the dirt down in the sluice where the gold is caught by the riffles placed crosswise in the box. A number of Oregon placer mining properties gave the gravel, 100 sacks of 150 pounds each coming from the following properties: Iugan & Baker, Centennial and Willow Springs Willow Springs District, Davenport in the Davenport district; on the opposite day some gravel from the Basin mine, the property of Captain George of Portland, was worked over; a clean up was made after each bag was worked, but the gold was allowed to remain in the boxes in order to give visitors an insight into the system of placer mining. A final clean up was made late in the afternoon, which netted about one ounce of gold dust and two nuggets weighing about one-eighth of an ounce each. This special attraction is in charge of F. H. Howe, superintendent of the Oregon mining exhibit—New York Engineering and Mining Journal.

COMMISSIONER LOCZEN has modified his late sweeping order in regard to suspension of pensions so far that none are to be made except where the cases on their face present evidence of fraud or that the soldier was not entitled to any thing. This is somewhere near the right thing.

The Kansas City Inter-State Fair Association will give an Annual Exhibition, September 25 to 30, 1903. The directors of the Association recognize the fact that a great many of our people have neither time nor money to attend the World's Fair, and that they must have the opportunity to attend a big fair at less expense. The Association expects better exhibits this year than ever before.

The races will be especially attractive, some $100,000 being hung up in purses, and some of the very best horses in the country have been engaged as special features.

The management will spare no pains or expense to make the fair of 1903 a wonderful success. A great many special attractions will be secured. Don't miss the great fair. One-half rates on all railroads.

Stone's Sectional Scheme.

The proposed consolidation of the west and south against the east, which seems to have been the principal champion, is decidedly the most foolish of the various fantastic projects that have been conceived during the present unsettled condition of affairs. There is nothing for any section to gain by arraying itself against another. The interests of all parts of the country are interdependent, and only mischief could result from any attempt to separate and antagonize them. Local conditions differ in some degree, of course, but that is an advantage rather than a disadvantage, and our general prosperity is largely attributable to these special variations. No one section produces all that is needed, and so must rely upon others for what it lacks, and thus trade of all kinds is promoted by what may be called a contributory process. The fact that we buy and sell among ourselves to an extent thirty times as great as our total foreign commerce shows at a glance the importance of this matter, and the necessity of avoiding any disturbance of the relations which it represents. There could be nothing more deplorable, from a strictly material point of view, regardless of other and higher considerations, than the introduction of the spirit of sectionalism in the direction and adjustment of our business operations.

It is easy to say that the east has largely profited by the growth and development of the west and south; but it is just as easy and just as true to say, on the other hand, that the west and south have been large gainers by the prosperity of the east. The money of eastern capitalists has been abundantly expended in turning the resources of these sections to beneficial account. There would not be a railroad west of the Mississippi today if such outside help had not been furnished. Missouri has gained a considerable degree of her wealth by reason of the constant investment of the surplus profits of other states in her commercial and industrial enterprises to say nothing of the market that has been made for her products on the Atlantic seaboard. If she should adopt a hostile policy toward a portion of the country from which she has received and is still receiving so much assistance, she would soon have cause to repent the mistake, as any intelligent person can readily understand. The prejudice against the east which Gov. Stone voices is a very silly feeling in every respect, and the good sense of the people should condemn it in emphatic terms. When the civil war closed it put an end forever to the theory of sectionalism, and the man who advises the revival of that exploded doctrine comes dangerously near to being a public enemy, whatever may be the nature of his motives and purposes. We are all one people, it should never be a reason for repeating the mistakes of the past to repeat the mistakes of the future. The suggestion of any different idea for application in our system of domestic trade and business intercourse deserves attention only to be denounced by all patriotic citizens as a stupid and pernicious fallacy.—Globe Democrat.
